

Valentine Magnets

Supplies:

Sheets of Fun Foam in Red, White, & Pink

Different sized heart shaped cookies cutters

Lace

Magnets

Sliver, Gold, or Black Paint Markers

Pencil or Pen

scissors (you can use scissors with different edged blades to make them fancier)

Glue

1. Place a large heart-shaped cookie cutter on one of the sheets of fun foam. Trace the outside of the heart with your pencil, then cut out your heart. Select a smaller heart-shaped cookie cutter on your heart. If it looks good, this is the right heart for your next heart.
2. Place the smaller heart-shaped cookie cutter on a different colored sheet of fun foam. Trace the outside of the heart with your pencil, then cut out your heart.
3. Do you want to add a picture to your magnet? You will need to select a very small heart-shaped cookie cutter that fits the smaller heart you just cut out. You will also need to check that the picture you plan to put on your magnet, does it fit inside the heart? Place the cookie cutter on the picture to check. If everything works, trace the outside of the smallest heart on the smaller heart cut it out. Place the heart so the part of the picture you want is visible through the hole you just made. Trace the heart on the picture.
4. Measure the lace around the outside of the larger heart, you may want to have a little extra so you want a little “give” (Some time as you glue, the lace seem to shorten as you glue it on, so...a little extra is important.) Glue lace around the backside of the large heart and cut any extra lace off.
5. Place the picture face-down through the opening and glue picture in place. If you want lace around this heart follow the same step you did for the large heart.
6. Glue small heart to the large heart. If you didn't add the picture, you can write a saying on the small heart “Be Mine”, “Happy Valentine’s Day” etc. with the paint markers.
7. Add magnet to the back of your heart. You should have supplies to make many magnets. You can also make them pins, if you use smaller hearts.
8. Enjoy or give to someone special.
